Santa Fe, NM & the Drury Plaza Hotel

Santa Fe rests in the foothills of the Sangre de Cristo Mountains, under beautiful blue, sunny skies and with cool, crisp, clean mountain air.

Recognized by Condé Nast Traveler readers as the #2 destination in the US, Santa Fe is an alluring year-round cultural, culinary, and outdoor destination with a wealth of history. Santa Fe has a vibrant cultural scene and great shopping. As the third largest art market in the US, the City Different is alive with arts, full of amazing food, and has so much for the senses to discover. We invite you to stay at the Drury Plaza Hotel in Santa Fe, to enjoy and explore all that Santa Fe has to offer.

The Drury Plaza Hotel in Santa Fe is located in the heart of downtown Santa Fe on Palace Avenue. The site is adjacent to St. Francis Cathedral, built by Archbishop Jean Baptiste Lamy between 1869 and 1886. In the 1910s, a portion of the property was a dormitory for the Sisters of Charity. The primary facade is from the 1950s St. Vincent's Hospital, designed by John Gaw Meem, and is an excellent example of late Territorial Revival style.

The hospital remained in the building until 1977. After that, the structure housed numerous important offices of the New Mexico Department of Cultural Affairs. The site was also used for movie sets, featured in many major productions as well as offices for the New Mexico Film Commission. All of these past entities are integral parts of Santa Fe's rich history, making it an important landmark for the local community.
